

Van Zyverden's
FOUR O' CLOCK'S MIRABILIS JALAPA MIXED

Four O'clock flowers grow and bloom abundantly in the summer garden. The blooms open late in the afternoon or evening, hence the common name Four O'clock. Available in a range of colors, Four O'Clocks sport fragrant colors that attract butterflies and hummingbirds. Uniquely different flower colors can appear on a single stem in some varieties. Four O'Clocks - an old garden favorite - are attractive in groups or as a single specimen in mixed borders or beds. They also do well in patio containers.
