

Van Zyverden's
HOLLYHOCKS DOUBLE PINK

Hollyhocks (Alcea) are perhaps the definitive old-fashioned garden plant. They are the tall, stately flowers you admire in established gardens of older homes. The lofty spires on our Hollyhock plants are covered with large, frilled flowers in stunningly beautiful colors. Typically biennial, allow the seeds to fall, and the clump will persist and return for years to come. They are Royal Horticultural Society prize winners! They bloom for weeks and make for a great back drop and tall garden dividers. Plant several packs to create that mass color effect. Twenty four plants will give you an 18 to 27 foot color wall in your garden. Wow!

Ruffled, double flowers

About This Variety: This double pink bloomer was chosen for our collection for its brilliant, clear-pink color. It is a great choice for a cottage garden, adding romance and calm.

Growing Instructions: Plant in a large roomy hole with the taproot of the roots pointing downward.

Care Tip: They may need staking. Soak them in water for about an hour before planting. Mulching will protect them from drying out and hot spring weather.

Exposure: Full sun

Height: Grows 4-8' tall

Spacing: Plant 24-36" apart, 2-3" deep

Hardy in: USDA zones 2-8

Guaranteed to grow 1 year from purchase if directions are followed. Any concerns related to quality and/or counts feel free to contact us.
